

Glam for the Holidays

How to sparkle this Christmas season.

Between caring for her three young children, teaching fourth year English and taking care of her advisory class at Marikina Science High School, Mrs. Sally Dy doesn't have too much time for herself. She's taught top notch students who have gone on to graduate with honors from the best universities, become officers in companies and even college professors.

An open-minded and progressive thinker, Sally recently facilitated a creativity seminar for fellow teachers in the Marikina Division. She encourages her own bright students to weave their own tales and be inspired by literature, despite the school's leaning towards science and technology. But on makeover day, the focus was on Sally and how she could be more creative with her own look! Stylists Barbi Chan and Cherry Pacheco-Uy show her how.

Barbi, Cherry, and the staff of Salon Paradiso give Sally a bright holiday look just in time for planned Christmas gatherings at her parents' and in-law's homes. We're all pleased with the outcome, and so is Sally's hubby! We receive a text from her saying "My husband was all smiles when he saw me." Kilig!

Sally's usually too busy for more than a routine of soap, shampoo and conditioner. The only time she splurges on a formal look is during school graduations.

It's the beginning to look a lot like Christmas...

Just what should you wear to that all-important Christmas party? If you're stressing over holiday dressing, take some helpful advice from Cosmopolitan Philippines. Editor-in-chief Myrza Sison cautions against overdressing. While special occasions may be a chance to add some glamour to your look, "don't deck the halls with boughs of holly!" she says. Donna Cuna-Pita, Cosmo's Fashion Editor, adds that jewel tones—dark, muted colors like purple, burgundy, and emerald green—are currently in style. "They're forgiving but elegant, perfect for the holidays." She also gives a final tip: don't be tempted to wear heels that are too high for any fun. Instead, opt for comfy shoes so you can dance the night away!

Sally's biggest problem, she says, is her hair that's so thick it always looks buhaghag. Fe uses special "thinning" scissors to layer Sally's locks and keep them lying flat.

To brighten dark areas in the face, you can use a lighter shade of powder, as Barbi does here with the shadows under Sally's eyes.

Barbi uses blush in Rose Lustre to give off a pink glow and a combination of Buttered Rum and Berry Pout lip colors for a fun and festive look.

- EYES: Avon True Color Eyeshadow in Beiges & Browns
